Comment: After researching and reading of this proposed rule I think that this establishment of a public safety answering point do-not-call registry should embrace the existing FTC's do-not-call registry for telemarketing regulations. It is a good idea to require any entity that accesses the PSAP registry certify, under penalty of law, that it is accessing the registry solely to determine whether any telephone numbers to which it intends to place as auto-dialed calls are listed on such registry for the purpose of complying with section 6507 of the Tax Relief Act .35. This new establishment of a public safety answering point do-not-call registry rule should prohibit use of the registry for any other purpose.
